MURDEROUS FOULRY IN NEW ORLEANS.—We copy the following from the New Orleans True Delta of the evening of the 28th:

At 9 o'clock last night some fifteen men suddenly appeared on St. Thomas street, between Melicerte and Terpichore, divided in three different squads, one of which passed down the middle of the street and one on each sidewalk. The faces of all were either blackened or masked, and they were armed with pistols, knives, and slung-shot. They rushed down the street, assailing every man who was out of doors, and hurling the women from the sidewalk into the gutters. They were all clad in dark coats, and none of them spoke aloud, all communication between themselves being in a low, muttered tone.

Thomas Donahue, a lame man, who was sitting in a bench in front of Mrs. Kenny's family grocery-store, was first attacked, stabbed in the left breast with a dirk, and his head dreadfully beaten with clubs. Not mortally wounded.

They then rushed into the family grocery store of Peter Rhoda, where quite a number of men were sitting inside and upon the bench at the door, and commenced a general stabbing, beating, and shooting.

John Eagan, a drayman, was stabbed several times, twice through the breast, dying of his wounds in two hours.

John Colbert's skull was fractured by blows from a slung-shot, and was stabbed twice, in the thigh and in the small of the back, the latter wound of a most desperate character.

Richard Coleman, drayman, was dangerously cut in the breast and severely beaten about the head.

Branigan, a laborer, was knocked down by a large stone which one of the ruffians held in his hand and with which he was struck in the face, and then stabbed severely.

James Smith, drayman, was knocked down by a blow from a slung-shot and kicked.

Riley, a laborer, received a severe contusion of the skull from the blow of a slung-shot.

John Devangian, drayman, was shockingly beat about the head with clubs and slung-shot.

James Murphy, a bold drayman, was severely beaten with slung-shot and clubs, and is desperately wounded.

After doing their work of indiscriminate assault and murder on St. Thomas street, so suddenly and in such overpowering force that not the slightest resistance was or could be made, this band of "midnight assassins" passed into Tchoupitoulas and New Levee streets, where they committed various assaults, though no one was dangerously wounded. All the parties attacked were Irishmen.

JOHN COLEMAN, a drayman, was stabbed several times, twice through the breast, dying of his wounds in two hours.

MARYLAND ELECTION.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 4.

8 o'clock, P. M.—The election passed off more quietly during the latter part of the day than was expected, though there has been a good deal of disorder and some bloodshed.

The parties who were shot in the Seventeenth ward, as mentioned in a previous dispatch, are not dead, but both seriously if not fatally wounded.

Another man was shot near the Fourth ward polls this evening; the wound may prove fatal.

The police have captured a large quantity of arms.

9 o'clock, P. M.—Americans are now marching the streets with music and transparencies, and firing gun's and pistols, with shouts of victory. They claim the triumph of the whole ticket. Scattering returns which have been received indicate a gain on Fillmore's vote, whose majority was 7,000. It will be quite midnight before complete returns from any of the wards will be received.

George J. Henkels, Walnut street, this morning distributed 550 loaves of bread to the poor, from the rear of his store on Adelphi street. There were many more applicants than could be supplied with the bread provided, and the great mass were of course, wretched paupers who live by begging at all times; but there were many persons who were evidently driven to seek relief by real want. During the distribution a wealthy gentleman, who was present, authorized Mr. Henkels to distribute 500 loaves weekly, during the winter, upon his account.

COUNTRY MERCHANTS will please bear in mind that everything new and all desirable in the Hat and Cap line can be had of HAYES, CRAIG, & CO., on good terms as in any Eastern City.

A RATHER SINGULAR CASE.—We have already alluded to the suit instituted in one of the New York courts by a Mr. Furniss, to obtain a writ of habeas corpus for Mrs. Woodman, who is confined in a private lunatic asylum on Long Island. Mrs. W. was placed there by her husband, who is a wholesale druggist in New Orleans. His reason for so doing was, improper intimacy with Furniss. On the trial, Mr. Burteed, an attorney, read two letters written by Mrs. Woodman to Furniss. The following is their substance:

The letters were inscribed to "My dear Babie;" the first alleged that she had written, in New York, once or twice before to Furniss, but received no answer, since which her husband had placed her in the lunatic asylum, as he told her, for revenge. That he would do all he could to make her miserable and to injure Furniss. That he would not permit her to see her brother in New York, nor let her write to any of her family. That if she had not thought it would please her husband she would have gone mad. She adds: "Oh! for God's sake, Babie, help me to get away." She then calls on "Babie" to assist her to get out, and tells him how she can do it. She wishes to die at home with her dear mamma; feels miserable; pines for familiar faces; says that when she first came she almost starved herself to death, but is now determined to live for revenge. Again she asks "Babie's" assistance, as her last hope, and concludes by expressing her wish that he (Babie) will sometimes think of one who can but wish she may still be his (Babie's).

From the other letter it appears that she had a reply from "Babie." She says that, night after night she dreams she is with him (Babie), and asks him if he will ever get married. "O, my Deu! I can see you now, just as you always looked when you said, 'Who loves Babie?'" She concludes with "a thousand of kisses," and begs him again to get her away.

The reading of the letters seemed to be very interesting to the crowd in the court-room. Some conversation followed between the judge and counsel, and the case was adjourned until Monday, at 12 o'clock, M.

[Correspondence of the Baltimore Sun.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1, 1857.

The rumor that the Administration have censured Gov. Walker's course in rejecting the illegal votes of Oxford district, in Johnson county, has produced some agitation at the North. Whether true or not, it will exert a most unfavorable influence upon the State election in New York, where the Democracy anticipate a triumph over Black Republicanism.

The fact appears to be that the subject of General Walker's proclamation was considered last week in Cabinet council, and that it was held in their opinion that it belonged to the Territorial Legislature to judge of the validity of the election, and not to the Governor. It is understood, also, that the subject is again to be considered in the Cabinet after the return of Governor Floyd, who was expected to arrive here last night. If Gov. Walker is to be censured or dismissed—and the former will be equivalent to the latter—it will not be without a hearing. His own explanations of his conduct must first be heard.

About a week ago dispatches were received by the government from Governor Walker in relation to his official conduct up to that date, and his vindication is said to have been ample and satisfactory. It is said, however, that he requested that the United States troops should be retained in the Territory this winter, and an order to that effect has been given. This shows that quiet in the Territory is not to be expected, whether our or the other party may triumph. The free State leaders are evidently bent upon mischief. They act in conformity with directions from their compatriots in the North, and the main object is to retain the Kansas issue for the next Presidential election. The Kansas policy of the administration will be a leading question of discussion in the next Congress, and, in relation to it, the Southern members will be divided.

MAYOR'S PROCLAMATION.

Mayor's Office, Nov. 3, 1857.

To James Kirkpatrick, Esq., Chief of Police:

You will cause each Marketmaster to be notified that no person, male or female, living in the city of Louisville, has the right to do business in the markets, or to buy or sell market articles in the city limits either with or without a license. All such persons are forestallers, regaleers, or engrossers, and liable to be fined. If any person living in the city go into the country and buy market articles not coming to market, such person has the right to sell in market (to consumers, not to persons to sell again) or in the city after market hours, as though he lived in the country, without a license. A huckster is a retail merchant, doing business under a license, and has no more right in the markets or spaces than a retail grocer or any other retailer living in the city. This thing of buying and selling market articles in the city limits on speculation must be discontinued. No person so doing can be the renter of a stall in the markets. It is illegal. The corporation has no power to authorize it. The Marketmasters are instructed to clear the markets of all such persons. That they claim under a license or as a stall renter is no excuse. The Police force and the License Inspector are charged to be aiding and assisting the Marketmasters in this behalf.
